BALLENISLES

“If you like water, you will love our South Course. Lakes come into play off the tee box on eleven holes. When you make the turn, you will face three of the most beautiful holes in Florida. Starting on hole nine, mature Australian pines create a completely different feel.” – JEFF FITZHERBERT, DIRECTOR OF GOLF

The East Course

PALM BEACH GARDENS, FLORIDA: The entrance-way to BallenIsles is shaded with majestic banyan trees with gnarled branches reaching three stories high. The stately trees are a harbinger of the environment and good life residents experience at the private community every day.

There are over 300 trees native to Florida, including the live oak, pond cypress, and red maple. There are only 12 species of native palm trees in Florida, including the cabbage palm, royal palm, and silver palm—many of which are found at BallenIsles.

OTHER CLUBS WITHIN BALLENISLES include a wine lovers’ club, multiple book clubs, a photography club, and bridge teams. complex, a Cosmo and Company spa, three restaurants, and an inviting resort-style pool.

Its central location, six miles to the beach, minutes from world-class shopping in Palm Beach, and less than an hour’s drive from three international airports are major selling points.

Member interest in tennis is a close second to golf. The club’s 350 active tennis players enjoy one of the largest facilities on the East Coast. With a 500-seat stadium court, 19 Har-Tru clay courts, and two hard surface courts, it is understandable why Olympic Gold Medalists Venus and Serena Williams train at the club. “Our clubhouse is already one of the largest, most luxurious, in Florida,” lauded Chris Card, general manager and COO at BallenIsles. “We don’t rest on our laurels. Plans are underway for a major expansion. There is a legacy of renewal at BallenIsles. Even during the downturn, when virtually every private club was frozen in fear, we broke ground on our Sports Complex. Our Board is cognizant that there are many fine private golf clubs in the state. We are proactive in providing the best and most modern facilities in the market.” ■

DID YOU KNOW?

BANYAN TREES are not native to Florida. Thomas Edison (inventor of the phonograph, motion picture camera, and, of course, the light bulb) planted the first Banyan tree in Sarasota in the late 1800s. Hinduism considers the tree sacred and its branches symbolize eternal life due to its unending expansion.

“OUR THREE COURSES are known for their mature landscaping and tournament caliber conditioning. The East Course is our marquis design. It is by far our toughest test with deep bunkers. It has hosted many U.S. Open qualifiers and is famous for several great moments, including Jack Nicklaus’s win of the 1971 PGA Championship.” – JEFF FITZHERBERT, DIRECTOR OF GOLF, BALLENISLES
