

Delight In The Lifestyle at FRENCHMAN'S CREEK

PALM BEACH GARDENS, FLORIDA: English writer and collector Charles Colton's famous axiom "imitation is the sincerest form of flattery" rings true at Frenchman's Creek Beach & Country Club.

"The club quickly established the benchmark for private club living in South Florida," explained Pamela Rudd, business development manager at Frenchman's Creek. "Our name recognition was so strong other developers and enterprises incorporated the 'Frenchman' name into their business. It's easy to see why the community has prospered. Palm Beach County approved the development of 3,300 homes within the gates. In a 180-degree turn from most developments, the final land plan limited construction to only 600 residences [many with deep water access], providing elbow room seldom seen east of I-95."

Frenchman's Creek is rich in member amenities. Residents have access to a private beach club steps from Juno Beach; a newly renovated 110,000 square-foot grand clubhouse with five themed dining rooms and a sixth dining room in the Beach Club. The completely renovated 5,500 square-foot Sports Bar has a louver-roof system and phantom shades for everyone's comfort. The club, which provides 150 annual member outings, has two golf courses designed by Jim Fazio and Robert Cupp; a 24,000 square-foot fitness center with a wellness program affiliated with Jupiter Medical Center; 13 Har-Tru tennis courts; three pickleball and bocce ball courts; stocked fishing lakes; a children's activity center and a dog park.

"When other private clubs matched our facilities, we took the experience to another level," said Rudd. "As a member-owned community with funded reserves and no debt, we're able to provide services most clubs charge for or are non-existent. For example, we offer complimentary breakfast each morning; have a strict no tipping policy; include roving 24-hour security and paramedic staff; notary service; dry cleaning pick-up; a club sommelier; and hurricane preparation, shelter, and post cleanup assistance."

A FITTING NAME

Frenchman Creek's Beach Club is located on Celestial Way, about a seven-minute drive from the golf clubhouse. "The street name Celestial seems appropriate and symbolic," expressed Cindy Teyssedou, manager of the Beach Club. "We offer a 'supremely good' time.

"We take the hassle out of going to the beach. Only a swimsuit is obligatory," teased Teyssedou. "Private valet parking is offered and all the necessities for a day on the surf-and-sand are included. We have you covered, with everything from towels, sunscreen, beach chairs, umbrellas, goggles, and complimentary snacks. Even the raised boardwalk to the beach is carpeted to keep your feet cool. After a day of play, don't fret if you have an appetite since we have a full service restaurant serving gourmet fare." ■
