

Like No Place Else IN THE WORLD

SEDONA, ARIZONA: With a sturdy pair of hiking boots and a sketchbook, Tom Weiskopf walked the land that would become Seven Canyons Golf Club, paying special attention to the rocky washes crisscrossing the property. "You won't forget it," promised Weiskopf. "It's a quality layout reminiscent of classic courses built during the turn of the century. Small greens mitigate shorter holes. Strategy and forethought is required before you pull out your driver."

"His design approach was definitely old school," said Dave Bisbee, director of golf operations at Seven Canyons. "The contrast of bleached white limestone cliffs, crimson hued rock outcroppings, and mix of evergreens is arresting. The final stretch of holes doesn't allow you to limp into the clubhouse. You must keep your wits about you and energy level up!"

Seven Canyons is surrounded by 100,000 acres of the Coconino National Forest, one of the most diverse national forests in the United States.

STAY AND PLAY IN A NATIONAL PARK SETTING

Resort guests staying at Enchantment Resort or Mii amo, a destination spa, have access to Seven Canyons.

"America's National Park System encompasses 417 national park sites, including 87 national monuments," reported Bisbee. "Usually golf isn't high on the agenda when you visit our country's great outdoors."

"Seven Canyons and Enchantment Resort, surrounded by thousand-foot vermilion cliffs, provide a national park setting, while delivering service standards you would expect from a hotel that has been named by Andrew Harper's Readers' Choice as a 'Top 10 Best Golf Resort.'" ■
