

“YEARS OF HARD WORK have created a private retreat where community defines culture.”

SPRINGBOARD TO THE SEA

LOS CABOS, MEXICO: The average American city has 205 sunny days per year (56 percent of the time). By comparison, the allure of the Baja Peninsula is even more apparent with its 350 days of sunshine (95 percent of the year).

“Teaching in the Pacific Northwest during the winter isn’t all that it’s cracked up to be,” stated Seth Westfall, director of golf at Querencia. “During my first trip to Querencia for a job interview, I enjoyed amazing fish tacos at the Bunker Bar, located at the club’s practice facility that overlooks the Sea of Cortez. I remember saying to myself, ‘If this is my office view, I’m in!’ Now in my fifth season at the community, I couldn’t be happier. We’re raising our children in nearby San Jose del Cabo, ideal for its vibrant culture, fun activities, and welcoming locals.”

Situated at the beginning of the famous tourist corridor, Querencia is an ultra-private, family-centric golf community with a Tom Fazio design that stairsteps down toward the coast. Members enjoy a clubhouse village offering a full-service spa, tennis and pickleball courts, six miles of biking trails, and a fitness center with a million-dollar view. Over $50 million have been invested in recent years funding projects, including a new Beach Club and oceanfront residences.

“Querencia serves a niche in the Cabo market, delivering the best of a private lifestyle,” expressed Tom Fazio. “It was a wild piece of land to tame. Its scale and ruggedness created a set of challenges that required special foresight. The end result is a spectacular course with even more spectacular views. Its central location—just a short drive from the airport and the towns of San Jose del Cabo and Cabo San Lucas—only adds to its appeal.”

A TRIPLE TREAT

“We offer one of the only true swimmable beaches in all of Cabo, not just a place to sit and sip on a Corona,” said Westfall. “The angle of the tide and natural rock formations make it easy to get a board in and out of the water. Querencia’s Beach Club provides access to three surf breaks. For the novice, Old Man’s surf break is ideal for beginners. The Rock is for the more proficient, and Zipper’s, only a short paddle away, provides larger swells for the world’s best.” ■

The Ocean Residences will offer floor-to-ceiling windows with direct views of the Sea of Cortez.
