

Pushing Your Game to its Peak Potential

“Belfair is as good as any golf experience you will ever play.”

The Belfair Golf Learning Center offers covered practice bays, a Scotty Cameron Putter Gallery, and one of 50 Titleist advanced fitting sites.

Center—part of $20 million in enhancements being made over the next decade.

“We paid homage to our past with an eye to the future,” said Ken Kosak, GM/COO. “Projects included a new family pool, new group exercise studios, and modern shuffleboard, bocce, and pickleball courts. As host to last year’s PGA Professional Championship, we are particularly proud of our two Tom Fazio golf courses—with recent major renovations completed on our East Course.

“There are many great private clubs in the Southeast,” concluded Kosak. “Few match our breadth of amenities and staff expertise.” ■

BLUFFTON, SOUTH CAROLINA: According to a recent study, only 10 percent of golfers have taken a set of lessons to better their game.

“It’s a statistic that really doesn’t surprise me,” expressed Dana Rader, lead golf instructor at Belfair. “Most private club members were introduced to the game by their parents or friends. While intentions are good, often advice provides informational overload.

“When I entered the golf business, your eye and feel dictated decisions. We simply didn’t have the analytical tools available today. That’s not to say experience doesn’t count. Our instructional team at Belfair, with more than 80 years of teaching proficiency, believes in a holistic approach to help you improve faster. We aren’t teaching golf, we’re teaching people.”
