

Mountain MODERN

The Golf Club at Black Rock offers a location unlike any other.

Black Rock overlooks Lake Coeur d'Alene, one of the five most beautiful lakes in the world according to National Geographic.

COEUR D'ALENE, IDAHO: During golf's boom days, competition was fierce to be named Golf Digest's "Best New Private Course of the Year." When The Golf Club at Black Rock received the distinguished accolade in 2003, your child's application was 15 times more likely to be approved at Harvard than a golf facility being recognized by the publication. Black Rock's bobsled-run fairways and rollicking putting surfaces framed by squiggly bunkers sold the magazine raters.

The Jim Engh course is a story of two tales. Several holes feature steep ridges and sharp drop-offs while others play through a wide prairie plain with generous fairways. "The back nine at Black Rock is like an old vinyl album where you favor a cluster of songs. I feel that holes 10 through 14 are my favorite stretch of holes." – Jim Engh

LAKE LIFE

Black Rock, named for rugged outcroppings of black basalt that jut up throughout the property, might just be the ultimate private playground that recharges your body and soul.

Overlooking Lake Coeur d'Alene, it has matured into one of the finest private recreational communities in the Western United States. Amenities include a 31,000 square-foot clubhouse, in-season caddie program, a pool, a spa and fitness center, tennis courts, and event barn. Members also have access to a nearby 130 boat-slip marina, beach club, and equestrian facilities.

"Our inventory of homes for sale is the lowest in a decade," said Greg Rowley, member at Black Rock. "I think the 'weirdness of the world' has accelerated those considering a move to our wide open spaces. Black Rock's fabric of life is unmatched."

This summer, Black Rock Flats, a new subdivision of lakefront turnkey real estate options, broke ground. "They will feature clean lines, lighter and brighter colors, and large windows and doors that blend indoor and outdoor living," detailed Rowley. "It's an opportunity to join us for a lifestyle that is flat out fun." ■

For membership information and an additional peek at the beauty of The Golf Club at Black Rock, please visit BlackRockIdaho.com.