Where every view is a postcard.*

PUNTA CANA, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC:
There is one thing in common between the top-50 money earners on the PGA TOUR—they each average more than four birdies per round during competition.

In September, when the PGA TOUR returns to the Corales Course at Puntacana Resort & Club, the world's best will challenge themselves on the closing stretch of holes nicknamed Devil's Elbow, including the striking 18th hole with its dramatic forced carry over the cliff-lined Bay of Corales. "The roar of the crashing waves can be faintly heard and the white foam of the surf can be seen catching the air," smiled Tom Fazio. "Corales is bold. Birdies are not a given on my course. The stamina and nerves of players will be tested during the championship as they compete for a $3 million purse."

THE COLOR OF GREEN

When Puntacana Resort & Club broke ground more than five decades ago, the concept of "sustainable development" didn't exist. The Rainieri family (the original developers still in charge to this day) made decisions based on respect for the Dominican Republic, its people, and natural resources. Arguably, Puntacana Resort & Club deserves to be recognized as the founder of sustainable tourism.

Puntacana Resort & Club is a low density community, set on 15,000 acres, with three miles of beach and 45 holes of golf. Interior design elements highlight the understated elegance and timeless vision of Oscar de la Renta. Luxury accommodations include: Tortuga Bay (a AAA Five-Diamond award winner), The Westin Puntacana Resort & Club, Four Points by Sheraton at Puntacana Village, and The Estates Experience Home Rentals. ■

"When I learned Pine Valley in New Jersey had a double-greened hole, I directed Tom Fazio to design Corales with two. Today, holes No. 3 and No. 15 each have two greens that create different shots, depending on pin positions."
