

Unparalleled PLAY AT 7,000 FEET

Las Campanas provides a private sanctuary for rejuvenation.

SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO: A look at the Las Campanas membership roster quickly shows its appeal. Without a current national membership offering, it has still drawn members from all 50 states and nine foreign countries. Residents are attracted for a multitude of reasons, including the region's glorious summertime weather. Some wrongly compare the climate to Scottsdale, Arizona. Summer is Santa Fe's "prime time," with crisp mornings and warm afternoons with low humidity. As they say, "great sleeping weather with the window open."

Las Campanas features two Jack Nicklaus Signature golf courses, an inviting hacienda clubhouse, a tennis pavilion, an industry leading fitness center with indoor/outdoor swimming pools, and a highly acclaimed equestrian program with room to board 80 horses.

"I grew up in the golf world and worked at several very private clubs on the East Coast," said Jordan Gibbs, head golf professional at Las Campanas. "I did a seasonal double shift between clubs in the Northeast and Florida. While the travel was tough, I gained double the experience and connections. Las Campanas has a different culture than most. It's the secret recipe for success. You feel comfortable all the time without pretense. Our members have been successful in life and feel little reason to flaunt it."

DELIVERING BOTH ENDS OF THE BARBELL

"Our membership represents a melting pot from around the country, we strive to make Las Campanas a community where you feel secure and look forward to fun," explained

"My courses are high desert beauties that sit in the soft hills just outside Santa Fe. The community provides a lifestyle beyond golf with family and fitness at the forefront, offering a fitting experience in the Land of Enchantment."

Brad Lardon, director of golf at Las Campanas and past Senior PGA Professional of the Year. "We have a thriving women's golf league that, in part, I give credit to our robust player development program. My golf shop staff introduces women who are taking up the game to a 30-minute clinic with a twist. We start on the practice tee with a typical short lesson and information session followed by a four-hole outing with margarita in hand. No pun intended, but it 'breaks the ice' and takes away any anxiety.

"That's not to say we don't cater to the other end of the spectrum," concluded Lardon. "Our twice weekly, $20 buy-in attracts our better players who are looking for a little 'skin' in the game!" ■
