Metaphor for Life

Talisker Club is a private wonderland retreat.

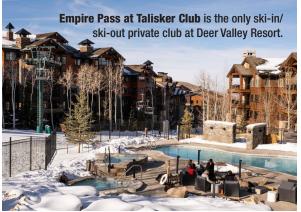

PARK CITY, UTAH: The Medicine Wheel has been used by generations of Native American tribes to symbolize health. Its four quadrants represent the physical, emotional, mental, and spiritual phases of life.

The state of Utah is named after the Ute tribe. "Naming our Mark O'Meara designed golf course 'Tuhaye' carries purpose," explained John Neill, general manager at Talisker Club. "In the language of the Ute, the literal meaning of Tuhaye is 'good land.'

"The core amenities at Talisker Club nourish the same phases of life described by the Medicine Wheel," continued John. "Our private, four-club member offering that encompasses all the wonders of Park City including stunning golf facilities [that doubles as snowshoeing and tubing in the winter], a private back country retreat [nestled in one of the largest aspen groves in America], and the ski in/ski-out convenience of Deer Valley Resort are several of our strongest selling points. Then, combine our easy access to the Salt Lake City Airport [only 35 minutes away], it's understandable why our real estate sales tripled last year."

SUMMER LOVE

John is considered a jack of all trades on and off the job. "I am as comfortable on the fairway as I am on a black diamond run," smiled John. "While I'm on the clock, my duties vary from the imaginative [creating seasonal menus] to extraordinary [master planning for the future]. No matter the task, we have one singular objective to build a financially sustainable club for generations to come."

There's an old adage in ski country: "I came for the winter, but I stayed for the summer," and it's certainly the case for many Park City residents. "I couldn't agree more," concluded John. "From a summer concert series to farmers' markets on Main Street, we aren't just a destination when the snow flies."
