

THE GALLERY

Grandness in the Sonoran Desert

Where roadrunners, jackrabbits, and a few lucky golfers play.

The South Course

MARANA, ARIZONA: There is a saying in golf: A facility with one great course makes for a great club. A facility with two great golf courses makes for a great destination.

The Gallery, set among thousands of giant saguaro cacti, offers members access to 63 holes of golf with sweeping views of the high Sonoran desert landscape. “There’s only one other private club in the entire Desert Southwest that offers more golf than us, but has an initiation fee and dues structure that would make you blush,” revealed Eric Lyman, director of membership at The Gallery.

“I can say with confidence, choice and value are paramount at The Gallery,” continued Lyman. “Our membership ethos involves four promises of heart, setting, service, and agronomy. Camaraderie among members can’t be

The North Course

The Gallery meanders through two rugged canyons with views of downtown Tucson and the Tortolita Mountains. There are so many varieties of cacti, it’s like playing through an arid botanical garden.

touched or seen, but rather felt deep in the soul. Combined with our tranquil environment, dedication to service, and quality playing conditions, our lifestyle provides a notable difference from the competition.”

IN GOOD COMPANY

Of the 108 Ritz-Carltons around the world, only a handful are considered golf resorts.

“I think it’s a feather in our cap that The Ritz-Carlton at Dove Mountain is only a mile down the road,” said Lyman. “It’s a testament to our surroundings. I imagine The Ritz-Carlton executive team scouts locations around the world, and they chose a site that is literally in our backyard.” ■

For membership information, please visit GalleryGolf.com or contact Eric at elyman@gallerygolf.com.

Take advantage of The Gallery’s lush landscape with its lighted tennis facilities, lap pool, and pickleball courts.