Where Life Outdoors Comes Naturally

"The colorful earth of Northern New Mexico was one of the most natural undeveloped sites for golf I've ever seen." — JACK NICKLAUS

SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO: The word bluebird symbolizes two meanings that both crystalize the Las Campanas lifestyle. Its most common definition refers to a cloudless sky with calm conditions, while the other references Native American culture and stands as a sign of prosperity and happiness.

"As a Certified Audubon Golf Facility, water conservation and habitat preservation are the important ethos among members and management," expressed Isabel Chavarria, director of membership at Las Campanas. "Our Bluebird Trail features 65 bird boxes to help propagate birdlife. It has been so well received that over 100 members have enhanced the initiative by installing similar bird boxes in their yards."

Las Campanas is spread across 4,700 acres with many homesites spaced up to a half mile from one another.

Las Campanas features two Jack Nicklaus Signature golf courses, a tennis pavilion, an industry leading fitness center with indoor/outdoor swimming pools, a highly acclaimed equestrian program, and a warm and inviting hacienda clubhouse.

"We have tried to stay true to the area's heritage," continued Chavarria. "Our community has genuine Southwestern charm with cultural influences from local Native Americans and descendants of Spanish settlers from nearly 500 years ago. I think a comment from Mr. Nicklaus sums it up best: 'The experience at Las Campanas is very different from other private clubs in the Southwest.' Our architectural guidelines embrace local style with the clubhouse being a shining example of pueblo design with heavy use of traditional stucco, heavy doors, and exposed ceiling beams."

"The warm summer days and cool nights might be the best in the world."

A TRAIL RIDE WITH A WRANGLER

The welfare of horses is paramount at the 20-acre Las Campanas Equestrian Center. Horses are turned out in large, sandy paddocks; fed three times daily; and blanketed and unblanketed as weather necessitates.

"Residents have access to three miles of manicured trails and direct access to 63,000 acres of BLM [Bureau of Land Management] open space," detailed Chavarria. "The size of our equestrian facilities rivals the size of our main clubhouse, showing how important the equine lifestyle is engrained at the club." ■
