

Intentional Living

Haig Point — Instead of traffic lights, your fellow commuters are dolphin, egrets, and osprey.

DAUFUSKIE ISLAND, SOUTH CAROLINA: Haig Point is a charming community, one mile off the coast from the famed Harbour Town Lighthouse on Hilton Head Island. With no bridge, hourly ferries provide transport to the barrier island. Once on property, members then hop into a golf cart (residents are not allowed to own a gas powered vehicle).

“As a mother of two, living here is a step back in time,” explained Mandy Baisley, member at Haig Point. “It’s a magical place harkening back to the days when you felt comfortable to have your kids ride their bikes to neighbors. I don’t like to refer to Haig Point as a club. We are a community where neighbors care for one another.

In addition to its Rees Jones designed golf courses, Haig Point offers complete equestrian facilities, a beach club, fitness center, lighted racquet pavilion, a kids camp, a dog park, and one mile of private beach.

No one arrives here by accident. We are all here because we get it. It’s real, not a stage set.

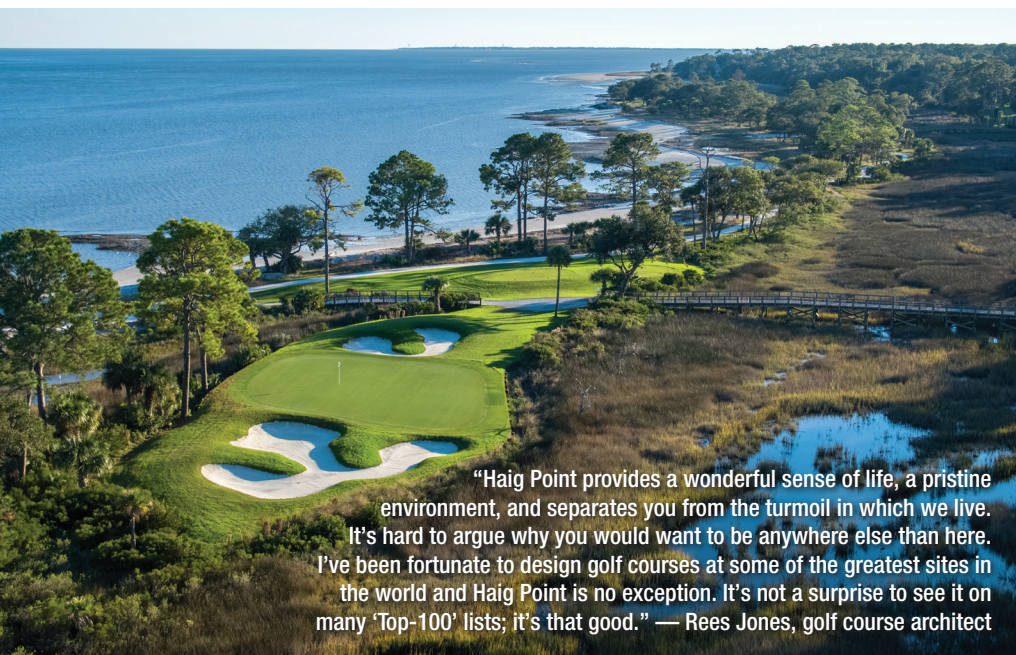

“Although we live on a barrier island, everyday conveniences are commonplace,” continued Mandy. “We have lightning-fast Internet and Amazon and Instacart are only a keystroke away in our household.”

BONFIRE ON THE BEACH

“A former coworker introduced us to Daufuskie Island years ago,” recalled Kyle Baisley. “It didn’t require a steep learning curve when we decided to join Haig Point. When first time visitors arrive at the embarkation point, typically you see one of two looks on their faces. Either one of pure joy or terror. If you are yearning for open space, safety, and a caring culture, this is a slice of heaven. If you are one who enjoys urban life, Haig Point isn’t for you.

“Just weeks into becoming members, several other young families invited us to an impromptu bonfire. In addition to being a lot of fun, the bonds formed were genuine,” smiled Kyle. “We all share a sense of commonality of living on a barrier island and appreciate what matters most in life.” ■

“Haig Point provides a wonderful sense of life, a pristine environment, and separates you from the turmoil in which we live. It’s hard to argue why you would want to be anywhere else than here. I’ve been fortunate to design golf courses at some of the greatest sites in the world and Haig Point is no exception. It’s not a surprise to see it on many ‘Top-100’ lists; it’s that good.” — Rees Jones, golf course architect
