South Florida's Premier Golf Resort

The Blue Monster's finishing hole looks daunting with water hugging the left side of the narrow fairway to a kidney-shaped green. For most, it is a three-shot hole.

MIAMI, FLORIDA: Similar to how the human body requires rest to keep refreshed and alert, a golf course requires respites and maintenance to remain in “top-notch” condition. They are living organisms requiring care. Component life spans vary, but according to the American Society of Golf Course Architects, greens have a typical lifespan of between 15-30 years, tee boxes 15-20 years, and bunker sand 5-7 years.

Carrie Ruiz, Golf General Manager at Trump National Doral Miami, has a long history in the golf industry. “Our resort has been through several prominent owners—including Marriott and KSL,” stated Ruiz. “Without question, no other organization could have reinvented our destination as well as Trump Golf. They are involved deeply, and it shows. Yes, the Blue Monster Course is our most famous design, but our Red Tiger, Silver Fox, and Golden Palm courses are so exceptional, all can be elite, highly rated standalone facilities.”

Trump Doral prides itself on everyday tournament quality conditioning. “During COVID, while many golf courses were reducing staffing levels, our agronomy crew remained intact,” said Ruiz. “With my golf sales background, I considered routine maintenance closures inconvenient. It is now my responsibility to ensure our courses are in optimal playing conditions. Maintenance is more than a priority to me; it is a daily commitment to the complex work needed to provide exceptional experiences to our community of to host our biggest event of the year at a course with such a long history with professional golfers. We are excited to add another piece of history to this famed destination. As we continue to select locations for our events in world-class cities, we knew that Miami needed to be included in the rota, and the Blue Monster is a fan favorite and a perfect place to end our season in the U.S.”

golfers. That commitment has also made our golf facilities somewhat of a nature sanctuary. Among our 6,000 palm trees live abundant birdlife, and many use our sanctuary as a stopping point as they migrate to Latin America.

“There are many golf resorts throughout Florida, but few are truly luxury golf resorts,” smiled Ruiz. “Unlike many of our peers who require a shuttle ride to their golf facilities, all four of our courses are within earshot of your room. With over 1,000 daily non-stop flights to 167 domestic and international destinations from Miami, you can catch a flight in the morning and be on the first tee by lunchtime.” ■
