The Golf Guru is in the House

The Guru at Work

NEAR HILTON HEAD ISLAND, SOUTH CAROLINA: Being awarded the 2024 “Carolina PGA Golf Professional of the Year,” Jason Sutton understands the nuances of a great golf instructor. “Since I started teaching more than 25 years ago, the use of instructional aids has exploded,” stated Sutton. “We have migrated from two-dimensional video to wide-ranging analytical tools. The more you measure, the more you learn. The more you learn, the better you can understand how to improve.”

Jason has earned the nickname Guru. “I’m a vociferous learner and strive to make my pupils play better. Being curious is an important trait that separates a great instructor from a good instructor,” continued Sutton.

For the past five years, Jason has been director of instruction at Colleton River Club. “If you are looking for a community designed from the ground up for golfers, look no further. Our facilities on and off the course are some of the finest in the world,” praised Sutton.

“This is the best course I have ever built.” — PETE DYE

What’s in a name? In the 1700s, several land-granted members of the Colleton family began to establish and develop the area originally called Footpoint Plantation.

“Our location is award-winning. Being nestled between Savannah and Charleston, both ranked in the ‘Top-10 Best Cities In The World,’ provides a laundry list of lifestyle choices.”

— ROBERT SERECI, CEO AT COLLETON RIVER CLUB

WATER WORLD

Colleton River Club is surrounded by water on three sides and bordered by a 1,100-acre nature preserve. “In my book, we are situated in the most beautiful place in the Lowcountry,” said Robert Sereci, CEO at Colleton River Club. “Our natural beauty, abundant wildlife, history, and culture thrive here. Having recently completed a $21.5 million amenities enhancement project, the community is now situated to be one of the finest in the Lowcountry.”

Amenities include Pete Dye and Jack Nicklaus Signature courses, a Bruce Borland par-3 short course, two modern clubhouses, including a beautiful rooftop lounge, a state-of-the-art Sports & Wellness Complex, a Junior Olympic swimming pool, new Tennis Center, three bocce courts, and eight cushioned pickleball courts.

“Nature is our centerpiece,” concluded Sereci. “Nowhere is that more evident than the four-mile drive from our entranceway to the Nicklaus Clubhouse. The roadway has a stunning canopy of moss-draped live oaks and palmetto trees. I like to refer to the drive as a decompression chamber from the outside world. Colleton River Club is the perfect community for those who want it all.” ■
