

LochenHeath

Members Enjoy
Sophisticated Comfort and Breathtaking Lake Views

The club's name evokes a Scottish links experience, with a Lake (Loch) and native grass (Heath).

The land was shaped by the flow of mammoth glaciers from millions of years ago.

TRAVERSE CITY, MICHIGAN: LochenHeath Golf Club, atop a scenic bluff, offers sweeping views of East Grand Traverse Bay and an exceptional private golfing experience. Going private in 2021 was not just a leap of faith by the member-owners but a well-thought-out decision. Now boasting over 175 members, the course is one of the top private golf destinations in the Midwest.

Designed by architect Steve Smyers, it blends dramatic 85-foot elevation changes, wide-open fairways, and strategically placed bunkers. Free of overwater carries, LochenHeath's design ensures both challenge and playability. A no-tee-time policy and the availability of forecaddies provide unmatched flexibility, allowing members to immerse themselves in the game at their leisure.

Complementing the main course is "The Heath," a six-hole par-three course perfect for casual evening rounds located on the practice range. With holes ranging from 80 to 145 yards, it emphasizes camaraderie over competition and appeals to all skill levels.

Beyond the fairways, LochenHeath delivers an indulgent lifestyle. General Manager Kevin O'Brien invites members to unwind with a fine scotch or select a bottle from an extensive collection of Napa and old-world wines. This paired with gourmet dining elevates the club's atmosphere of luxury and exclusivity. Whether for a golf getaway, corporate retreat, or a memorable outing with friends and family, LochenHeath offers a tranquil haven amid Northern Michigan's natural beauty.

Traverse City's airport (8.5 miles from the club) has over 19 nonstop summertime flights from major hubs, ensuring effortless travel. Upon arrival, members enjoy well-appointed cottages just a five-minute stroll from the clubhouse. These accommodations feature expansive living rooms, cozy fireplaces, and overhead soaker showers—perfect for unwinding after a day on the course.

LochenHeath Golf Club, with its world-class golfing, exquisite amenities, and breathtaking scenery, has established itself as a premier private destination for discerning enthusiasts. This Northern Michigan gem is unrivaled for those seeking a serene and luxurious escape. ■

A short walk from the clubhouse and private practice tee, The Cottages at LochenHeath offer accommodations for up to eight guests.

For membership inquiries, contact Membership@Lochenheath.com.