JONATHAN'S LANDING

Quiet Luxury, Loud Loyalty

Find yourself in the sweet spot for the good life.

JUPITER, FLORIDA: At Jonathan's Landing, quiet luxury isn't about flash—it's about feeling at home. Nestled between the Intracoastal Waterway and nature preserves in Jupiter, Florida, this member-owned private club has quietly cultivated a culture of enduring loyalty, multigenerational connection, and understated elegance.

Families don't just join Jonathan's Landing—they grow up here, return here, and bring the next generation along with them. "We often say we have members whose grandchildren are out playing pickleball while their grandparents enjoy bridge or a round of golf nearby," said Joe DiPasquantonio, general manager. "There's a legacy here that transcends amenities—it's the feeling of belonging."

A DESTINATION FOR ALL GENERATIONS

With three distinctly different golf experiences—including the newly renovated Village Course by Beau Welling, which features a ferry boat ride across the scenic Intracoastal—members can choose their style of play. The Match Course, designed by Gil Hanse and Jim Wagner, offers a minimalist, strategy-driven experience, while the Tom Fazio-designed Medal Course plays through protected terrain and water features.

BUT GOLF IS JUST THE BEGINNING

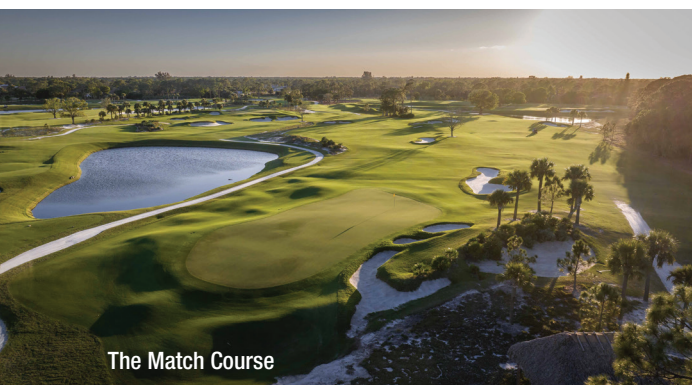

The club's diverse lifestyle offerings—pickleball, tennis, social programming, fitness and wellness, and curated experiences—attract families looking for more than just a club. They come for the amenities, and they stay for the people.

"We don't chase trends—we invest in what matters most to our members," said DiPasquantonio. "The proof is in their loyalty." Whether enjoying a round of golf, playing a friendly match of tennis or pickleball, or gathering for themed dinners with longtime friends, members at Jonathan's Landing know they've found something special. A place that doesn't need to shout. A place where luxury is lived. A place where loyalty runs deep. ■

The Match Course

"Like so many other families, my husband and I successfully raised our children, which provided little room to play golf. My parents lived at Jonathan's Landing for 30 years, so we decided to make the move to the community.

"Today, generations of the Tabor family celebrate everything Jonathan's Landing has to offer. My mom enjoys playing cards. My husband and I participate in just about everything, while our children are enthralled with fishing trips and pickleball.

"There's a saying, 'A club with one golf course is known as a golf community; if it has two courses, it's known as a golf facility... however, those with three member courses [a rarity] are called golf destinations!'"
