

Tracking the Seasons Through the Lens of QUECHEE CLUB

Each moment is up to you and every experience is yours to share.

QUECHEE, VERMONT: Shutterfly processes more than two million cards, over 40,000 photo books, and 5,000 canvas prints per day. Incredibly, customers download 50 billion photos annually through its website. “Our photos of seasonal activities can easily fill a monthly calendar,” said Brian Kelley, GM/COO at Quechee Club. “You will have to be choosy when creating your layouts with so many great shots at your fingertips.

“Our community, at 5,500 acres, is one-third the size of Manhattan in New York City,” continued Kelley.

“Our Lakeland Course plays exactly as it sounds.

Adjacent to Lake Pinneo and the Ottauquechee River, the layout sits on a natural flat floodplain with little elevation change, providing an easy walk in the park experience where water is in view from 17 of its 18 holes. The Highland Course, situated in the surrounding foothills of the Green Mountains, is true Vermont with changes in elevation. If you yearn for the look and sounds of rustic New England, this is it.

“All the ingredients combine for the perfect recipe. Soon after we turn our mountain snowblowers off, preparations begin to open golf operations.” ■
